

The Mythic Southwest is the theme of the latest issue of the Blue Mesa Review, the paperback format annual journal of fiction, poetry, and prose that was founded by Rudolfo Anaya, the widely acclaimed Chicano author of Bless Me, Ultima. This issue is edited by David M. Johnson, associate professor of English at the University of New Mexico. Introduced with essays by Enrique Lamadrid, V. B. Price, and Luci Tapahonso, Blue Mesa Review #7 contains work by more than fifty contributors, including poets Robert Burlingame, Lyn Lifshin, Harvena Richter, and Jeanne Shannon, short fiction by Bobby Byrd, and E. A. Mares, plus book reviews and essays. While deeply rooted in the regions multicultural spirituality, the works are at once as diverse and unified as the human condition. From a young doctor coming to terms with his Native American past and unknown future in Cody Wasners Drawing Blood to a foreign-exchange student discovering himself on the streets of New York City in Mario Materassis The One Who Fell, Blue Mesa Review features an eclectic blend of today's best writing.

At The Tomb Of The Inflatable Pig: Travels through Paraguay, Frankenstein (Case Studies in Contemporary Criticism), A Single Pebble, Watch Me Disappear, The Recognitions (Penguin Classics),
